They say that the picture sometimes tells the story – and so it is in this case. Situated very close to the railway station and a short walk from the village centre in Whalley near Clitheroe in Lancashire, Breda Murphy does indeed supply food which is ‘way out’...in the best sense of that term.

Nestling near the railway arch but with some parking available, this modernised building serves as a restaurant, a deli and the home of a catering business. The dining area is light and spacious and the staff efficient and courteous....and the speed with which the restaurant filled speaks volumes in an area of discerning diners and ample choice.

It came as no surprise, then, to learn that the restaurant has already won many accolades both locally and nationally and to these we would certainly add our own.

Being early or booking in advance is advised – but please note the opening times as the restaurant is closed on Sunday and Monday and is only available after 6pm by special arrangement. Certainly it is well worth the trouble to arrange a lunch however, as the food is really very good indeed and the cost very reasonable.

We were certainly impressed by the whole eating experience (not an easy thing to attain with the number of places we visit) and would be very surprised if other visitors did not find the same.

Go there as soon as possible and you’ll see for yourselves!
